

Attention CAPT Members

From The Sacramento Bee State Worker:

We want to hear from California state employees: Tell us what it's like to work during coronavirus

The coronavirus will affect California's state workforce for a long time to come.

The State Worker is looking for ways to improve and expand our reporting on how this pandemic is affecting state work.

With the survey below, we hope to get a broader picture of how your employer and your unions are managing responses to the pandemic. We're also looking for tips and specific suggestions for our future reporting.

The form \(linked here\) is designed to keep you anonymous, but if you'd like to hear from us, feel free to include contact information in one of the text fields. We will keep all of your information private.

And as always, feel free to email me (Wes Venteicher) at wventeicher@sacbee.com.

A graphic with a blue background featuring the word "SURVEY" repeated in a grid pattern. In the center, there is a white rectangular area with a blue border and a white drop shadow. Inside this area, there are three black silhouettes of people (two women and one man) standing side-by-side. Below the silhouettes is the CAPT logo, which consists of the letters "CAPT" in white inside a black oval. To the right of the logo, the text "The Sac Bee wants to hear from YOU!" is written in bold black font.

CAPT The Sac Bee wants to hear from YOU!
